

Hansgrohe: A Partnership You Can Count On

On June 15, 1901, Hans Grohe founded a handicraft business for metal products in Schiltach in the Kinzig Valley, Black Forest. Many things have changed since that day, but not our passion for water and our commitment to beautiful, environmentally-sound products, then, now and in the future. That is the #hansfactor.

The #hansfactor is the green innovator's heart in every Hansgrohe team member. From it, emanates the desire to create unforgettable moments with water. This passion is evident in the art of engineering, the willingness to experiment, and also in Hansgrohe's unfaltering demand for perfection, which can be seen, for example, in the sound and spray laboratory, where highly sensitive microphones are used to carefully search for disturbance sounds. The passion of the #hansfactor can be felt in every product that leaves the factory grounds.

Over the past 120 years, Hansgrohe has been defining style and function, time and time again. In countless bathrooms and kitchens, people all over the world trust our outstanding products. And with "Smart Living" innovations, such as the RainTunes multisensory shower system, we are setting a new pace. But we also aim to lead the way outside the bathroom and kitchen. As a company, we are constantly working on the ambitious goal of being climate neutral in direct emissions at all Hansgrohe sites by 2022. We are even aiming for climate neutrality for all products by 2030.

In our present South African reality, we are faced with an ongoing water and energy crisis that urges every business to embrace environmental responsibility and save our most precious liquid resource, and to help herald in a greener world for generations to come.

At Hansgrohe, we not only help build bathrooms, we build the future. We recognise the value in people to collaborate and share expertise. We know that what we do isn't a job, it is a craft. Together with you, we are on the path to tell stories and bring spaces to life. Our craft enhances lives with the beauty of water. This you can count on. #Countonhansgrohe.
