

Trellidor: Safe to Party Behind These Security Doors

If anecdotal evidence is to be believed, ever-resourceful criminals are targeting groups of revellers being entertained at home. They're able to rob a number of people at once, taking their cell phones, jewellery, cash and anything else of value. This calls for the innovative use of security doors, and Trellidor has some attractive solutions.

Secure the area with see-through screens
Trellidor Clear Guard mesh screens fitted to patio doors extend the entertainment area, allowing guests to party outside without fear of being attacked. The industrial grade stainless steel mesh screen is robust enough to provide protection from home invaders but sufficiently finely woven to keep out other nuisances such as swarms of mosquitoes.

Framed in aluminium, these security screens are attractive and blend in seamlessly with any architectural style. During the day they'll allow in light but not glare, so guests don't swelter in the midday heat while enjoying uninterrupted views from the patio of the garden, sea or mountains.

Pretty and practical roller shutters

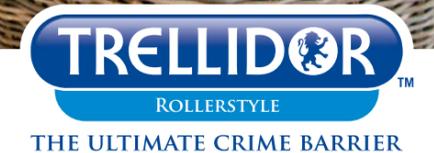

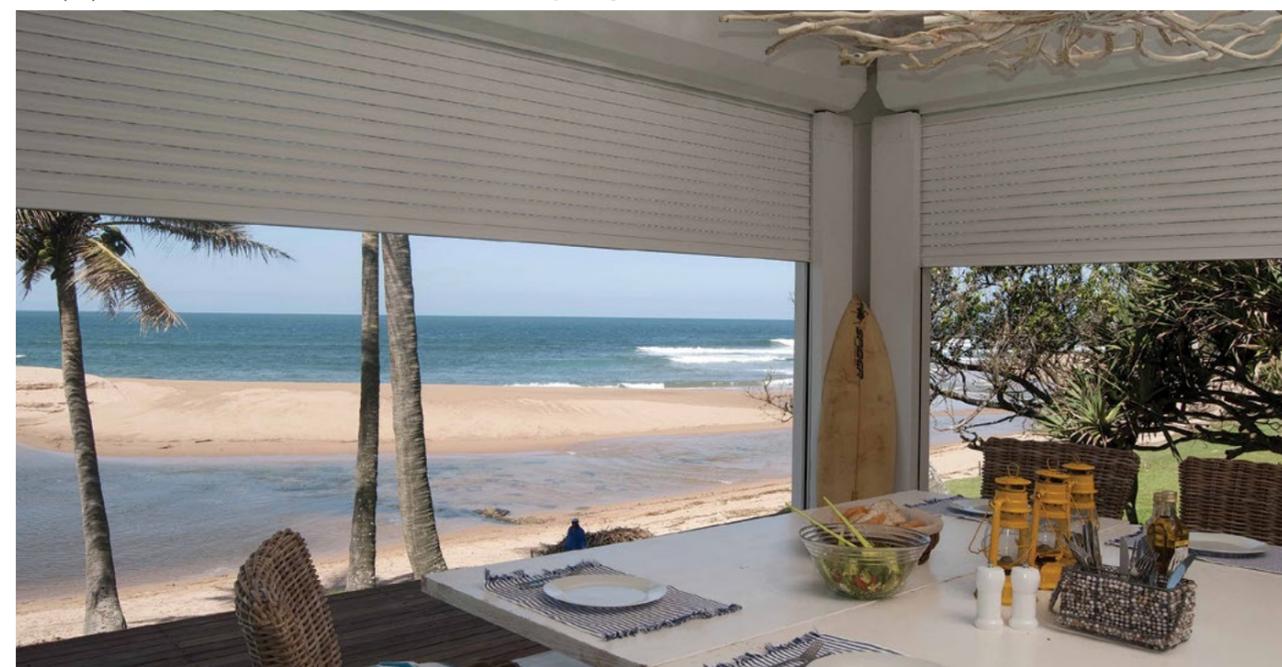

Trellidor Rollerstyle aluminium shutters are another sensible solution to safe entertaining. When closed, they provide a formidable obstacle to anyone thinking of breaking into the party.

The shutters can be fitted to doors and windows, closing up the house completely for peace of mind. Various shutter options allow the home-owner to control the amount of air and light that penetrates through the shutter. They are light and easy to open, simple to work and roll up out of the way into a neat and compact box that can be recessed into the wall. They can also be automated and remote controlled for ultimate convenience.
